

Chesham Bois Heritage Trail

Ken House Hotel site

Kensworth 1946

Rene Ross turned Kensworth, a large Victorian house with a lovely garden, into a hotel after the Second World War.

The Ken House Hotel as it was known was then sold to the Uptons who built a bungalow for themselves inside the new entrance gate in Long Park. Part of the garden was sold to build eight bungalows in Long Park Close. The hotel was also sold but it closed down. After being left empty for many years, it was vandalised and burnt down in 1987. It was finally demolished in 1989 and replaced by Laurel Court.
