

Privacy Policy and Procedure

Aim

Amersham Museum aims to comply with the Data Protection Act (DPA) 1998 and the General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) 2018.

Data Collection

The museum collects personal data from staff, volunteers, Friends of the Museum, donors, people participating in events and activities (both to join the activity and to evaluate it). Their data is gathered in different ways, for different purposes (see appendix 1: data audit).

The museum will ensure that personal information is only used for the purposes stated when the information is provided. If an individual would like to be contacted about other museum activities, they are asked to complete a consent statement.

Data Storage: Security

All data is kept securely, with limited access, either in locked cabinets or secure folders, on our server or a GDPR compliant server. Your information will be kept for the minimum amount of time before it is disposed of securely. Access to the museum's mailing list is password protected with the file containing the passwords contained within a secure folder.

Data Storage: Time

All data is kept for a reasonable amount of time, in relation to its uses:

- Staff records are kept for one year after a member of staff has left
- Volunteer records are kept for one year after a volunteer has left
- Information related to Gift Aid returns must be kept for six years after the return is made
- Personal details related to donations to the museum's collection are held indefinitely
- Personal details relating to joining a club or activity are deleted once the activity is completed
- Personal details relating to Friends of the Museum are only held during membership; if someone does not renew their membership their details are removed and deleted
- Evaluation forms are kept for two years after completion and then destroyed

Consent

Where it is necessary to obtain consent to contact people – primarily in relation to promoting the museum's activities – a consent form must be completed. The consent form will be accompanied by a short privacy statement, which will detail the following:

- information about the museum including address and charity number

Amersham Museum Limited

49 High Street, Old Amersham, Bucks HP7 0DP
01494 723700, info@AmershamMuseum.org www.AmershamMuseum.org

- what data the museum collects
- what happens to data, how it is stored and kept secure
- cookies on the website,
- how to ask for a 'subject access request'
- how the policy is updated, the date of the last update
- how to get in touch and where the policy is available.

When personal data is used to contact people – primarily through our mailing list to promote activities – the option to opt out of being contacted will always be given.

Storage of Consent Information

All consent information will be recorded on an excel spreadsheet, which is in a password protected folder on the museum server. Only the director, learning officer, collections manager and trustees have access to the folder. Any paper versions of the consent form will be destroyed. The spreadsheet will also record the date that the information was collected and the place where the information was completed.

Subject Access Requests

The museum will respond to any Subject Access Requests within two weeks of application. Applications can be made in writing to the Director or by email to info@amershammuseum.org The museum will provide information on what data is held on that individual, how that data is used and the source of the data.

Review and Update

This policy will be reviewed once a year, every April. It will be reviewed by the director and presented to the board of trustees for approval. This policy is due for approval in April 2025.
